Privatures, Nov. 11.—Upon the arrival at Dubois, Pa., of the mail train north on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad to-day, the car inspector, while passengers were getting on and off the cars at the depot, discovered three dynamite bombs and caps fastened under the springs of the rear coach. The Engineer Heffernan Sees a Suspicious Loc ing Individual Assisted Into Fotheringham's Car. the springs of the rear coach. St. Louis, Nov. 10.—The only thing new in the express robbery is the statement of Engineer Heffernan, of the Wabash road, that he saw a stranger get into Messenger Fotheringham's train as it left the union depot here on the night of the robbery, and that the stranger was assisted into the car the springs of the rear coach. The bombs were carefully removed and there were many pale faces among the passengers when they learned the terrible fate they had so narrowly escaped. The train starts from Punxutawney every morning, and it was undoubtedly at that place that the bombs were placed under the springe, as it makes only short stops between there and Dubois. It is twenty miles from the place of starting, and how it was possible for a train to run that distance over short curves with that amount of dynamite and caps under the springs of a coach is a mystery. Thirty-four persons were in the coach. Suspicion po nts directly to no person as the perpetrator of the deed. The matter will be thoroughly investigated by the railroad authorities and an effort made to bring the criminal to justice. statetment made before the grand jury that by some one on the inside. It was on this statetiment made before the grand jury that the indictment against Fotheringham was found. Heffernan's story is as follows: "I was in the union depot in the evening of October 25 oiling my engine. My time to start was 5:25 p. m., but justas I was about to get away I noticed that the Frisco train was across the main track. Of course I could not move until the Frisco got out of my way. The express car was almost directly opposite my cab window, and I noticed that the door of the car was stading open. The messen er and his belper were inside busy with their duties. It was nearly time for the Frisco train to start, and Dwyer swung himself off the car and went away. A minute or two later a man came along with a valise in his hand and stopped directly under the electric light and within a few feet of the gine. He answered Fotheringham's description of the robber as far as I remember, except that he was a couple of inches or so shorter. He wore his hat well forward over his face, and I could not make out his features very clearly. He asked me which was the Frisco train, and I pointed it out to him. It was just moving away, and he ran along-side of it until he reached the express car, the door of which was still standing open (a very unusual thing, by the way), threw his valise inside, reached up his hand and was pulled up through the door into the car. He could not have jumped in without assistance, especially with the train in motion, and I believe Fotheringham helped him." Thomas Dwyer's testimony corroborated the engineer's testimony mother, inclosing in the letter story, which he suggests may be of usein clearing her son of the suspicion now resting upon him. The round millions were made good by his father, and the directors had to supply the remainder. The United States District Attorney confessed to-day to a knowledge of the negotiations, but declined to say whether or not he would quash the indictment if they were successful. A friend of the family says when Eno received a letter from his sister telling him what had been done, he took an early morning train at Montreal, and, reaching this city at night, repaired to the paternal mansion on Fifth avenue. He were a heavy Canadian unster and a soft felt hat. The collar of the coat was turned up, and served to completely hide his features. No one would have recognized him in that attire, and certainly none suspected him. It was said that he actually hungered for a look at the old house and the society of his family, and had taken a desperate chance. The next night he returned to Canada.

A Cruel Russian Sect.

Russia is peculiarly rich in surprising sects and associations, but the most astounding is one lately brought to light bearing the ominous title of "The Red Death." Its members affect to believe that he who consciously permits another to suffer prolonged pain commits a mortal sin. In order to abbreviate the mortal sin. In order to abbreviate the sufferings of humanity it is a matter of conscience with them to kill the slok, that they may be put out of their pain quickly. The association takes its name from the fact that its executioners, dressed in red for the occasion, strangle their victims with red cord, placing them for the purpose upon a red catafalque, beneath the dull reddish light of an oil lamp. This atrange and horrible association was brought to light by the energetic opposition interposed by a man in Baratol when his mother and sister endeavored to strangle his sick wife. He called in the authorities, who have already arrested some forty of the murderous sect. Their organization seems to be a transference from India to histories, the religion of the Thurs.—N. K. See.

THE PACKERS BACK DOWN.

THE PACKERS BACK DOWN.

They Bescind Their Resolution to Refuse Employment to Enights of Labor, but Will Hold Gut for the Ten-Hour Day—The Stock Pards Garrismed by Over a Thomasand Armed Men.

Cuscaco, Nov. 11.—The East overtures toward a settlement of the great strike at the Stock Yards were made quietly yesterday by the packers rescinding the resolution never again to employ Knights of Labor or union men until they resigned from those organizations. The situation at the yards remained unchanged throughout the day, the action of the packers not having been heard of until late at night. The employes of the large houses were paid off, and this, added to the prevalent despondency among the strikers over the hopelessness of their case, was productive of much more general intoxication than has yet been noticed, but notwithstanding disturbances were less frequent than on either Monday or Tuesday.

Representatives of all the packing firms met in the directors' room of the Board of Trade upon an urgent call yesterday. The meetings of these days, it was only met in the directors' room of the Board of Trade upon an urgent call yesterday. The meeting was private, but, like most private meetings of these days, it was only semi-private. This much became evident. The chief Knight of Labor representative in the city had met some one of the packers, authorized to speak for all the rest, and there had taken place between them a general discussion of the situation. That discussion had reached a conclusion on two points. One was that the packers at their last meeting had struck a blow at the whole organization of Knights. The other was that, in turn, the boycott on Chicago meats had been ordered or was about to be. From these two points the two representatives argued out the question. Now there has been two results. One is the action taken by the Packers' Association and the other is the action taken by the Knights.

At the meeting of the packers yesterday a series of resolutions was adopted setting forth that inasmuch as the packers had become convinced that the resolutions adopted at a recent meeting declaring that no man would be employed by them unless he severed his connection with labor organizations were unjust to numerous persons severed his connection with labor organiza severed his connection with labor organiza-tions were unjust to numerous persons who are members of such organizations those resolutions should be rescinded, and the following resolutions be adopted as be-ing more in accord with the mutual interest of the employers and employed, to wit:

"WHEHEAS, The packers are confronted with the fact that their employes are repeatedly leaving their employment without notice to them and to the great detriment of their bus-ness, which is of such a nature as to require constant prosecution and careful attention therefore, "Resolved, That while we will not exclude "Resolved, That while we will not exclude from employment the members of such organ izations, we will exercise the right to employ and discharge whom we please and conduct our business on the ten-hour plan and according to our best interests."

The action taken or yet to be taken by the head and front of the strikers, it was hinted last night, would be that inasmuch as the packers had recognized the Knights of Labor and rescinded their former reso-lution against that order, and inasmuch as lution against that order, and inasmuch as the strike had been precipitated by the local authorities against the wishes of Mr. Barry, the chief representative of Mr. Powderly, now in the city, the strike has been or will be declared off, and all the old hands ordered back to work. The packers, it has been said, stick to the tenhour principle, this having been conceded to them on the ground that they will withdraw their boycott on the Knights of Labor, the Knights in turn to withdraw their proposed boycott on the product of the proposed boycott on the product of th Chicago packing houses.

r view of the case, suggested by Another view of the case, suggested by a friend of the packers last evening, is that the packers became convinced that their resolution of the previous day was wrong in principle, and that many members of various labor unions or other organizations various lator unions or other organizations imight have paid in money for bonevo- lent or insurance purposes which their resignation would annul. For these reasons the resolutions were rescinded and the new ones substituted.

In accordance with the determination reached by General Fitz Simons Tuesday, a special order was issued from brigade headquarters at the Stock Yards that the headquarters at the Stock Yards that the commanding officer of the First Cavalry de-tail one troop of the command to join the two regiments at the yards, the troop to ship their horse equipments and come fully armed and equipped for service, carrying carbines and revolvers with rounds of bal-cartridges and twenty rounds of revolver amunition. In accordance with the order Colonel Jacobs detailed Troop D, consisting of fifty men under Captain Ole Hough, be longing to his command, and dispatched them to the yards. With this latest addition the brigade is now complete and fully equipped for any emergency that can possibly arise. The Gatling gun stands in the yard covered with heavy canvass, and under the immediate eye of a guard, ready for use when the call comes, but that is among the least of the expectations.

The number of men now making it their special business to preserve the peace is 1,075, classified as follows:

All of the packing houses were in opera-tion yesterday, and the number of employes was visibly increased. Now men, hired at the city offices of the various firms, were sent down from time to time during the day by scores and by hundreds.

New Yoak. Nov. 11.—The wholesale butchers of Washington market say they do not believe that there will be any real attempt made by the Western packers to bring cattle East and then kill them, and in that opinion they agree with the representatives in this city of the Western packers. One wholesale butcher said he understood that about 800 exen had been killed and dressed in New Jersey this week for a Western packer. The report, however, could not be verified. The men who actually kill and dress the cattle here are all union men, and they will not kill any cattle for the Western packers so long as the strike lasts, and if any wholesale dealers here or any where East attempts to assist the Western packers by arranging for their cattle to be killed here a strike of all the union butchers would immédiately be ordered. The agents of the Chicage packers say that a car-load of cattle may be killed for Western packers here and there in some of the towns along the route to supply the local trade.

THE MANURE PILE.

Timely Suggestions on a Topic of More Than Ordinary Interest. How to save the manure of the dairy, and how to apply it to the best advantage, is one of those problems of the farm that no man can think and study over too much. Some one has wisely said that the manure pile is the farmer's bank account. If the farmer has the proper appreciation of the nature of manure on the farm, he will value early winter for its admirable adaptability to securing this valuable article for the

The dairyman is usually so much better provided with manure than the ordinary farmer that he seldom appreciates its real value, and so neglects to take advantage of all opportunities he has for increasing his supply. In the first place not one dairy farm in a hundred is provided with any means for securing the liquid manure from the cows. This is usually allowed to run to waste and the liquid manure from the cows. This is usually allowed to run to waste and often to make a mud-hole in the stable, instead of being secured in some shape that it may be of value to the farmer. Some very fine dairy farms have cisterns or cemented basement, or manure cellars, with more or less elaborate conduits leading from under these cows to these receptacles, and very often the collection of such a mass of fluid manure sets up a stench that ruins the atmossets sets up a stench that ruins the atmosphere for breathing purposes all about the stable. This is an expensive and often ruinous method of saving the field manure, and one that few practical dairymen will be willing to follow.

This is one of the instances in which economy and the best practice go hand in hand. Instead of laying out money for costly apparatus for carrying the liquid it will not only be far cheaper but much better in every way to save this liquid manure with some dry substance used as bedding for the cows, such as leaves, dry weeds, the patent moss, or even dry earth, straw or other material, such as saw-dust, that will come handlest to the man who has the cows to bed.

Dry earth is an excellent article for cows to bed.

Dry earth is an excellent article for bedding and saving the liquid manure, though it is not so easily gathered and taken care of or spread under the cows as leaves. Dry earth is, however, a better disinfectant of bad odors, while it holds all the water that falls on it. The great trouble with this bedding is the mud that will stick to the cow's hair, and the everlasting dust it makes in the cowhouse.

If you can get saw-dust, by all means do so. It is a long way the best bedding ever invented, being light to haul, easily stored, easily spread under the cows, an admirable absorbent, and can be quickly shaken out it the morning. Both leaves and saw-dust have an admirable mechanical influence on the soil. While leaves help the productive character of the soil, not much can be said in this way for saw-dust, and especially the dust of pine and oak and some other woods, they last so long before beginning to rot. We advise, however, that the dairyman be not too scrupulous about the article he puts in his manure pile. The first thing is to attend to its built. Get together every thing on or off the farm that can be spared and add it to the manure pile. First attend to the built and the quality will take care of itself. By degrees all the constituents will melt into one and make a valuable manure—American
